

Vision of Church– August 2010

As I was thinking about Church, I got an image of a tall building that had 7 levels:

Level 1: As I entered the building, the first level was prayer and felt God saying that this was the foundation for everything else that was going on in the building and really the foundation for what goes on top.

Level 2: On the Wall, I just saw a luminous sign saying “HEALING”. In the room what I saw was that there were individuals receiving their physical and emotional healing. Freedom was coming and individuals were working through their issues, but real freedom was coming and this was happening so that they could walk up into the next levels.

Level 3: As I went in this level, I saw a teacher drawing in a notepad and the others around were copying it down and also in the room others were studying the word. I felt this level was to do with teaching. Teaching through going deep in the word however also teaching being modelled through example.

Level 4: Moving on here, as I looked in the room, there was a range of generations in the room signifying the family feel to church. Also in this, I felt God wanting the generations to be together in a way that was a benefit to all involved, rather than favouring one generation to the other. The service that was going on was not favouring the kids, not favouring the youth, not favouring the adults, it was something everyone was enjoying and wanted to be part of.

Level 5: On Level 5 I could just see people going into Heaven Encounters; people lying flat out, on their knees just entering into heaven. Face to face encounters with God and they were just beholding and gazing upon him.

Level 6: This level I could just see trains everywhere, going in various directions. Just everything was going so fast and what I saw was that I and some others were putting backpacks on individuals and then sending them onto their designated trains; it was as if we were sending them to school. I felt God saying it was a level of equipping; sending individuals out to do what God had for them. It was about making sure they were prepared for the journey and had their resources needed for it, fulfilling their destiny and reaching their part of the harvest.

Level 7: This was a strange level and I just felt it was to do with spiritual warfare. I just felt battles were going on here and fighting was taking place. It seemed to be when people were being sent out, battles were taking place, the spiritual realm was active however what was noticeable was that the Kingdom was advancing

On top: I felt there was a big microphone/megaphone on top of the building. Felt God saying that the church is to be a mouthpiece to other churches/places and also a place where declarations are made into the nation, sounding across the nation
